Leaders in Jamaica

The Student Government Leadership Institute

Six days. Two student governments. One standard of leadership.

An annual, cross-border leadership institute that pairs a US student government with its Jamaican counterpart to strengthen governance, sharpen execution and build leaders who deliver measurable results.

Overview

Leaders in Jamaica is the flagship leadership institute of Sight Seers Caribbean Adventures. Each year, a delegation of five student government executives and one advisor from a US university is paired with a counterpart delegation from a Jamaican university. Over six immersive days, the two delegations operate as peers, benchmarking governance practice, codifying policy and process, and building the systems that allow a student government to perform beyond a single term. Every delegate leaves with five ready-to-implement deliverables. The experience is anchored by a campus exchange, a Career Development Day at a Jamaican high school and a Pitch Night where community initiatives compete for funding. Before departure, both delegations convene for the Shore Briefing, a live online orientation. Programme dates will be announced once the pilot year is confirmed.

Before you travel: The Shore Briefing

A live, facilitated online orientation for every delegate and advisor, held approximately two weeks before the programme once all places are confirmed. It sits outside the six days and ensures every participant arrives aligned, prepared and ready to contribute from the first session.

- Programme orientation: a structured walk-through of the six days, the eight modules and the five deliverables
- Operational briefing: travel logistics, arrival procedures, dress code, packing guidance and the code of conduct
- Safety and safeguarding briefing, including the Career Development Day protocols
- Delegation breakout rooms: US and Jamaican delegates meet their role counterparts in advance, for example treasurer with treasurer, to build rapport before arrival
- Pre-work: each student government submits its constitution and one priority challenge to be addressed during the week
- Open Q&A for delegates and advisors

- Approximately 90 minutes by video conference. Access details are issued with confirmation of full payment

- No identifiable images of students without the school's consent, and no posting of students on social media
- No exchange of personal phone numbers or social media details with students
- Every visitor completes the safeguarding briefing during the Shore Briefing and signs the code of conduct

Pitch Night and the Leaders Fund

On Saturday evening, mixed Jamaican and US teams present community initiatives to a panel. The strongest proposals receive Leaders Fund grants and are delivered within 90 days, turning ideas into measurable community impact.

Who can apply

- Each annual cohort pairs one US university with one Jamaican university
- Each university sends five student government executives and one advisor, typically the president, vice president, treasurer, secretary and one additional executive
- Delegates must hold an elected or appointed executive position in their student government
- Advisors are staff members who support the student government, such as the student government advisor or a student life officer

For advisors

- Each delegation travels with one advisor from its university. The US advisor is accommodated at the villa with the US delegation; the Jamaican advisor joins each day from their own base
- Advisors have full access to every session, including the campus exchange, the Career Development Day and Pitch Night

- Sight Seers manages all logistics end to end, so the advisor's role is oversight and support, not coordination
- Advisors enrol on the same terms as delegates: a US$35 application fee, a 30% deposit on selection and the balance in full 14 days before the programme. The place may be funded by the advisor or their university
